Community Foundation of San Joaquin Announces $177,000 in Community Health Grants to Promote Health Careers and Improve Health Outcomes in the Region

STOCKTON, CA –December, 2017– As part of a multi-year, $2 million dollar commitment towards improving health care services, health outcomes, and medical education in San Joaquin and Calaveras counties, the Community Foundation of San Joaquin announced $177,000 in grants to support the work of local nonprofit organizations and public agencies.

“As one of the county’s largest philanthropic organizations, we are committed to improving the health of our region by supporting collaborative efforts, innovative approaches, and leveraging matching funds through our Community Health Fund,” said Moses Zapien, president and CEO of the Community Foundation of San Joaquin. “We are proud to support this year’s grant recipients whose work will help move the needle of progress by focusing on ‘growing’ our own healthcare workforce and improving health outcomes in the area.”

This year’s five awardees are nonprofit organizations and public agencies who have backgrounds in: primary, secondary and higher education, workforce development, and medicine. There will be more than 20 other local partnering or participating organizations involved in carrying out the work lead by this year’s grant recipients. The total amount of matching funds committed from all of grant recipients this year, was nearly $130,000.

2017 COMMUNITY HEALTH FUND GRANT RECIPIENTS
